For easy navigation, the Earring section is grouped by Diamond Earrings, Gemstone Earrings, Pearls Earrings, and Metal Earrings. Each grouping contains styles including Stud, Cluster, Earring Jackets, Dangle, Hoops, Ear Trims/Ear Climbers, and more. These definitions provide a quick reference. For more information, visit Stuller.com/BasicsOfJewelry.

Chandelier
Long ornate earrings that dangle from the earlobes. They usually drop more than one level.

Cluster
A decorative earring composed of stones grouped together in a cluster, which may or may not overlap each other.

Dangle
An earring that extends below the earlobe and is designed to swing.

Drop
An earring that extends below the earlobe and is stationary.

Ear Trim/Ear Climbers
The ear climber is an elongated earring that is designed to hug the upper part of the ear. An ear trim is a curved ear jewelry piece that can be worn on both pierced and non-pierced ears.

Hinged/Huggie
A small hoop earring that fits closely around the ear lobe and is generally thicker than a standard hoop.

Hoops
A (usually) circular, ring-like earring that may be a complete circle or may only go part of the way around.

Jackets (with studs)
An adornment for the ear that is an accessory to an earring and designed to be secured to the lobe with a stud.

Stud
A stud appears to be floating on the ear without a visible point of connection from the front. The stud is made on the end of a post, which goes straight through the ear, and is secured with an earring back.

Lab-Grown Diamond Stud Earrings

Precisely Graded. Brilliantly Created

Lab-grown diamonds are not simulants like CZ. They are diamonds. Instead of forming over millions of years in the earth’s mantle, they are created in rough crystal form by scientists. They are visually, optically, and chemically identical to natural diamonds.

Our lab-grown diamonds arrive at Stuller with —
- A certificate from GCAL (Gem Certification and Assurance Lab) or a grading report from IGI (International Gemological Institute)
- A unique inscription on the girdle

While at Stuller, lab-grown diamonds are —
- Housed in a completely separate vault
- Stored and shipped in a distinct, blue acrylic box
- Always handled separately from natural diamonds
